New! Major Choices in Business

[Package of 25] Imagine that you are a college student interested in business but confused about your course of study. You aren't sure what direction you should take or what career you might be interested in pursuing after you get your degree. You don't even know what your options are or how they match your interests. Do you want to be an accountant? A copywriter? An operations manager? A recruiter?

Most colleges and universities offer a wide range of business majors, specializations, and courses of study, and the truth is that a degree in finance and a degree in marketing will likely lead to students taking different classes, learning different skills, and embarking on different careers. Major Choices in Business can guide those students to choose the major or specialization that is right for them, as well as get them thinking about the kinds of careers they want to pursue. ©2009.
